
My wife left me over Fantasy Football

Posted by kresFFB - 2008/08/28 08:58

So basically I love sports and fantasy sports. My wife knew this when we got married, but after a year of marriage she told me she was leaving me because of it. I told her I would limit to football only and drop out of fantasy baseball, golf, basketball, hockey, NASCAR, tennis and Olympic Badminton. She said it was too late and she was already fucking some other guy who hates fantasy sports.

Why all the hate? Fantasy sports are a lot of fun and help us cope with the mundaneness of coming home to nagging and increasingly less attractive ladies like yourselves day after day. Seems to me fantasy sports should be a good thing in your eyes.

PS: Now that I am single any ladies want to go out? A little about me, I also love video games and watching sports on TV, please never talk to me while I am doing either.

I think you guys should save the money you waste losing on fantasy sports and go buy a hooker.

I don't play for money. I play to win in free leagues with my closest and dearest friends. It's about competition, comradery and fellowship. I am sorry you have no friends and have never won anything in your life, although not surprised. I pity you.

Dorks of a feather, flock together. Enjoy each other, cuz that is all you will ever have.

LMAO @ how bitter you are. Men find fantasy sports more appealing than they find you, get used to it.

So you married a woman that was unattractive to you? Suppose that is the only option for some dorks.

As women age they get less attractive, real newsflash isn't it? Of course some were just born ugly, I am guessing you fall in this category.

She probably left you because your league was full of guppies and she didn't respect you. Try playing in some shark-infested waters, like I do. I have to beat the ladies off of me with a stick.

I do win my league almost every year pretty easily. I do find most chicks are impressed by my FFB trophies though.
